Dr Romila enunciated that foundational literacy and numeracy should be the prime focus for helping children learn to communicate, read and write.

She inspired the facilitators to follow a story-based approach, for child's a strong foundational literacy and numeracy base.

The resource person educated the facilitators to select age appropriate stories and the facilitator should exhilarate the children to participate in pre and post-story-telling activities.

- create reading, writing, and speaking areas in the classroom
- create independent and guided activities
- linguistic phonic awareness
- create word wall
- concept of print and word (relevant display, labelling and marking attendance, name card activities.
